- 176 Letters
- John Paul Stevens* 177 Some thoughts on judicial restraint
The Justice's address to the annual meeting and banquet of the American Judicature Society, August 6, 1982.
- Bernard G. Suran* 184 Psychological disability among judges and other professionals: some causes and cures
Judges share with doctors and other achieving professionals characteristics and experiences that can result in psychological disability. An understanding of these phenomena makes possible effective prevention and intervention programs.
- Robert V. Stover* 194 Law school and professional responsibility: the impact of legal education on public interest practice
Although many students begin law school with a commitment to public interest practice, few follow that path upon graduation. Law schools should put more emphasis on service to underrepresented segments of society.
- 207 Judicial independence and accountability: walking the tightrope
An edited transcript of the panel led by Fred Friendly at the annual meeting in San Francisco.
- 216 Focus
- 219 Books
