PRACTICE

Training and Educating Environmental Mediators:
Lessons from Experience in the United States 269

Bruce C. Glavovic, E. Franklin Dukes, Jana M. Lynott

The authors present a detailed description of a training program for the education of environmental mediators, urging a reflective educational process that emphasizes a transformative model of mediation.

Confronting Social Injustice as a Mediator 293

Michael A. McCormick

The author explores whether a mediator should deviate from the norms of impartiality to deal with questions of power imbalance, to identify moral issues, and to present possible options for resolution when dealing with issues of social justice.

Problem Solving for One 309

Alan Tidwell

This article presents a model developed by graduate students working in a mediation program at Macquarie University (Sydney, Australia) for assisting with one disputant in a conflict.

RESEARCH

Mediating When Domestic Violence Is a Factor: Policies and Practices in Court-Based Divorce Mediation Programs 319

Jessica Pearson

Through interviews with mediators and program administrators, the author explores the ways in which court-based mediation programs have responded to concerns about mediating when there may have been domestic abuse.

Achieving Neutrality and Impartiality: The Ultimate
Communication Challenge for Peer Mediators 337

Claudia L. Hale, Chris Nix

The authors analyzed transcripts of peer mediations conducted in a middle school to investigate what communications tended to support or interfere with the participants' sense of the mediators' impartiality and neutrality.

A Quantitative Analysis of the Use and Avoidance of Mediation by the Cook County, Illinois, Legal Community Thomas D. Cavenagh This empirical study identifies the factors that tend to encourage or discourage the use of mediation by attorneys.	353
