

General Course on Public International Law	15
2. Types of practice	160
3. Evaluation of practice	163
C. Who makes State practice?	164
IV. Is the term "custom" appropriate?	165
Chapter VIII. Multilateral conventions as substitute legislation	168
I. Changed conditions	168
A. The function of treaties in the international system	168
B. The theoretical framework	170
II. Techniques for selecting international rights and/or obligations	173
A. Basic agreements	173
B. Partial acceptance	173
C. Reservations	175
1. The history of the reservation provisions in the VCLT	177
2. When is a reservation incompatible with "object and purpose" ?	179
3. What is the effect of a reservation which is incompatible with "object and purpose" of a convention?	182
4. Conclusions	188
III. Can uniform application be improved?	190
A. Control through domestic procedures	190
B. Is international control required?	192
Chapter IX. Law-making processes not mentioned in Article 38	193
I. Unilateral acts	193
A. Different categories of unilateral acts	193
1. Autonomous and adjunctive unilateral legal acts	193
2. Unilateral acts in the treaty-making process	194
3. Unilateral acts in the custom-forming process	194
4. Autonomous unilateral legal acts	195
B. Tests for the legally binding character of unilateral acts	197
II. Authoritative legal acts of international organizations	201
A. Rudiments of organized law-making for the non-institutional conduct of (member) States	201
1. Explicit norm-setting procedures	201
2. The powers of the Security Council under Chapter VII	203
3. The Tribunal for the Former Yugoslavia: a case study	204
B. Law-making for institutional purposes	209
1. The "rules of the organization"	209
2. Rules addressed to States	210
3. Rules addressed to individuals	212
Chapter X. Inter-source relationships	214
I. Custom and treaty	214
A. Codification	214
1. The motives of codification	214
2. Evaluation of the record	217
3. Lessons to be learned	218
B. Interaction of custom and treaty	220
1. The relation of a codification convention to the custom which it codifies	220

II. Sovereign equality and membership	100
A. Equal rights and the veto	100
B. Equal voting rights or weighted voting?	101
C. Majority decisions or consensus	103
III. Tools of (powerful) States or instruments of the community?	107
A. The influence of States through representative organs	107
B. Secretariats: administrators or agenda setters?	109
Chapter V. The changing focus of international law	112
I. Sovereign self-reliance versus solidarity	112
II. From State to individual	113
A. Human rights	113
B. The protection of minorities	117
III. New challenges and threats	120
A. Internal armed conflicts	120
B. The proliferation of nuclear, chemical and biological weapons	123
C. Terrorism and transnational criminal activities	124
D. Mass-migration	125
E. Free trade versus protection of the environment	126
IV. Conflicts between old and new	128
Part II. Law-making	131
Chapter VI. The law-making processes of the international system	131
I. The sources in Article 38 of the Statute of the ICJ	131
A. The significance of the sequence of sources	131
B. Is the list of sources exhaustive?	134
C. Does Article 38, paragraph 1 (d), reflect reality?	136
1. Judicial decisions	136
2. Teachings	137
II. Instruments for the development of international law	138
A. Codification	138
B. New regulations	140
C. Soft law	141
III. Should all development of international law aim at universal acceptance?	144
A. The choice of an appropriate procedure	145
B. Need regulations necessarily be universal?	146
Chapter VII. Custom and general principles	149
I. The complexity of custom	149
II. The formation of custom	151
A. A changing process	151
B. The ingredients of custom	152
1. Values	152
2. Interests	154
3. State practice	156
III. Establishing custom	157
A. The task	157
B. Evidences of custom	158
1. Records of practice	158

TABLE OF CONTENTS

Foreword	21
Introduction	23
I. Orientation of the course	23
II. Aim and method of the course	24
Part I. Organization	29
Chapter I. The structure of the international system	29
I. Characteristics of a legally ordered community	29
II. International law as accepted order	32
III. International law as a coercive order	36
IV. The submission underlying the course	38
V. The international system and the "global village"	40
Chapter II. The legal organization of the international system	43
I. Actors	43
A. States	43
B. International organizations	44
C. Transnational actors	45
II. Fundamental principles	47
A. The Friendly Relations Declaration	47
B. Non-use of force	50
C. Non-intervention	55
D. Peaceful settlement of disputes	59
E. Solidarity	61
III. Unity and universality of international law	61
Chapter III. States	66
I. The State between supra-nationality and disintegration	66
II. Jurisdiction of States	68
A. Eroding territoriality	68
B. Reconciling conflicting jurisdictions	70
C. Exceptions to territorial jurisdiction	74
III. New States	78
A. Identity	78
B. Recognition	82
C. Succession	84
Chapter IV. International organizations	88
I. Functions and powers	88
A. International legal personality	88
B. The nature of powers	90
1. The interpretative framework of constituent instruments	90
2. Ultra vires acts	91
3. Power or authority?	97

ACADÉMIE DE DROIT INTERNATIONAL
FONDÉE EN 1923 AVEC LE CONCOURS DE LA
DOTATION CARNEGIE POUR LA PAIX INTERNATIONALE

RECUEIL DES COURS

COLLECTED COURSES OF THE HAGUE
ACADEMY OF INTERNATIONAL LAW

1997

Tome 266 de la collection

1998

MARTINUS NIJHOFF PUBLISHERS
The Hague/Boston/London

Chapter XIV. Collective enforcement	293
I. The practice of collective enforcement	293
A. Provisions for collective enforcement	293
1. Indirect enforcement	293
2. Enforcement by the Security Council	294
3. Areas requiring collective enforcement	296
B. Means of enforcement by the Security Council	297
1. The use of military force: the plan of the Charter	297
2. The use of military force: lessons from the Gulf War	299
3. Non-military measures: embargos	302
II. The new challenge: peace-keeping or peace-making?	304
A. Traditional peace-keeping	304
B. The new challenge	305
1. Selected recent cases	306
2. Evaluation of the cases	311
3. Is the United Nations up to the task?	313
Chapter XV. Individual enforcement	316
I. The concomitant of a decentralized system	316
A. A necessary evil	316
B. Individual enforcement and countermeasures	317
II. When are countermeasures legitimate?	319
A. The emergence of an international dispute	319
B. Countermeasures and political expediency	320
C. Is the existence of a dispute a condition for legitimately applying countermeasures?	321
D. The ILC's proposition	323
III. The limits of countermeasures	327
A. Norms of jus cogens	327
B. Protection of the human person	330
1. Humanitarian law	330
2. Human rights	331
C. Self-contained régimes	332
D. Proportionality	333
Valediction	335

2. Do codification conventions generate custom ?	221
3. Bilateral treaties and custom	223
II. Two or more successive multilateral treaties on the same subject-matter	225
III. Charter obligations and other international obligations	229
Part III. Law-enforcement	233
Chapter XI. Remedies in primary law	233
I. The system of primary and secondary norms	233
A. The concept	233
B. Types of primary norm systems	234
II. Selected examples of primary norm remedies	236
A. Environmental law	236
B. Humanitarian law	240
1. Individual responsibility in humanitarian law	240
2. The Tribunal for the Former Yugoslavia	242
3. The Tribunal for Rwanda	247
4. The International Criminal Court	249
5. Outlook	252
Chapter XII. State responsibility	253
I. The work of the ILC	253
II. The cause of international responsibility: the breach of an international obligation	254
A. The internationally wrongful act	254
B. The breach of erga omnes obligations	256
C. International crimes of States	257
III. The attribution of internationally wrongful acts	259
A. Determining the author	259
B. Forms of responsibility	262
C. Determining the injured State	266
IV. The consequences of responsibility	268
A. Cessation	268
B. Reparation	268
C. Consequences of international crimes	272
Chapter XIII. Redress through settlement procedures	274
I. The effectiveness of prescriptions for the settlement of international disputes	274
A. The role of settlement procedures in the international system	274
B. The plan of the Charter	275
1. Available United Nations procedures	275
2. Freedom of choice	277
C. Methods to limit the choice in legal disputes	279
D. Mechanisms under sectional and/or sectorial rules	282
II. Should the nature of a dispute determine the appropriate procedure for its settlement ?	284
A. Different kinds of disputes	284
B. Suitable mechanisms	287
1. Should existing procedures be improved ?	287
2. Are new procedures required ?	291