

THE GEORGETOWN LAW JOURNAL

Night and Day: Coeur d'Alene, Breard, and the Unraveling of the Prospective-Retrospective Distinction in Eleventh Amendment
Doctrine

Carlos Manuel Vázquez

Do Three Strikes Laws Make Sense? Habitual Offender Statutes and Criminal Incapacitation

Linda S. Beres and Thomas D. Griffith

Reason and the Rule of Law: Should Bare Assertions of “Public Morality” Qualify as Legitimate Government Interests
for the Purposes of Equal Protection Review?

Peter M. Cicchino

The Modern Parol Evidence Rule and Its Implications for New Textualist Statutory Interpretation

Stephen F. Ross and Daniel Tranen

Courts, Congress, and the Constitutional Politics of Interbranch
Restraint (reviewing Courts and Congress, by Robert A. Katzmann)

Charles Gardner Geyh

Note: The Application of Chevron Deference in Regulatory Preemption Cases

Damien J. Marshall

VOLUME 87

NUMBER 1

OCTOBER 1998

THE GEORGETOWN LAW JOURNAL

Volume 87

October 1998

Number 1

Contents

Articles

- Night and Day: Coeur d'Alene, Breard, and the Unraveling of the Prospective-Retrospective Distinction in Eleventh Amendment Doctrine
Carlos Manuel Vázquez 1
- Do Three Strikes Laws Make Sense? Habitual Offender
Statutes and Criminal Incapacitation
Linda S. Beres and Thomas D. Griffith 103
- Reason and the Rule of Law: Should Bare Assertions of "Public Morality" Qualify as Legitimate Government Interests
for the Purposes of Equal Protection Review?
Peter M. Cicchino 139
- The Modern Parol Evidence Rule and Its Implications for New Textualist Statutory Interpretation
Stephen F. Ross and Daniel Tranen 195

Book Review

- Courts, Congress, and the Constitutional Politics of Interbranch Restraint (reviewing Courts and Congress, by Robert A. Katzmann)
Charles Gardner Geyh 243

Note

- The Application of Chevron Deference in Regulatory Preemption Cases
Damien J. Marshall 263