

F. Arbitration	404
G. Judicial settlement — in particular: the ICJ	410
(a) Acceptance of the ICJ by the international community	411
(b) Jurisdiction	413
(c) Indication of provisional measures	415
(d) Non-appearance of parties	418
(e) Compliance with decisions	419
(f) Advisory opinions	421
3. Disputes involving international organizations	425
4. Disputes involving individuals	431
5. Conclusion	432
Concluding observations	435
Bibliography	437

ACADÉMIE DE DROIT INTERNATIONAL
FONDÉE EN 1923 AVEC LE CONCOURS DE LA
DOTATION CARNEGIE POUR LA PAIX INTERNATIONALE

RECUEIL DES COURS

COLLECTED COURSES OF THE HAGUE
ACADEMY OF INTERNATIONAL LAW

1999

Tome 281 de la collection

2001

MARTINUS NIJHOFF PUBLISHERS
The Hague/Boston/London

Chapter III. The State	91
1. The sovereign State as an indispensable element of the international legal order	91
A. The State as a historical fact of life	91
B. Basic functions of the State	93
2. Constitutive elements of the State	96
A. Population	96
B. Territory	101
(a) Occupation	101
(b) Conquest and annexation banned	105
(c) Cession	106
(d) Acquisitive prescription	107
(e) State succession and uti possidetis	107
C. Government	110
3. Micro-States	111
4. Federal States	113
5. Recognition	115
A. Admission to the United Nations	115
B. Bilateral recognition — individual or collective	116
C. Non-recognized de facto régimes	120
6. The failing or failed State	121
Chapter IV. Other subjects of international law	124
1. International organizations	124
A. Legal personality	125
B. Treaty-making power	130
C. Immunity	131
D. International organizations and general rules of international law	134
2. Other non-State entities	140
3. International entities generally not recognized as subjects of international law	141
A. Expert bodies in the field of human rights	141
B. International judicial institutions	143
C. Hybrid entities located between national and international law	144
D. The OSCE	146
4. Individuals	149
A. Individuals as active subjects of international law	149
B. Individuals as passive subjects of international law	152
5. Non-governmental organizations	155
6. Conclusion	160
Part II. The founding principles of the international legal order	161
Chapter V. Sovereign equality	161
1. General observations	161
2. Sovereignty	164
A. Concept	164
B. Sovereignty subject to international law	167
C. Presumption favouring sovereignty?	168

D. Subordination to international organizations	172
E. Territorial integrity	175
F. Jurisdictional immunity	176
G. Freedom to choose and develop the political system	183
(a) General	183
(b) Permanent sovereignty over natural resources	184
3. Equality	189
A. Legal, not factual equality	189
B. Substantive equality?	191
C. Equality no rule of jus cogens	193
D. Equality as constraint on sovereignty	195
E. Jurisdiction	195
F. In particular: extraterritorial jurisdiction	196
4. Conclusion	202
Chapter VI. Non-use of force and non-intervention	203
1. Non-use of force	203
A. General concept — historical antecedents	203
B. The meaning of force	207
C. Territorial integrity or political independence	209
D. Domestic effect of the ban on use of force?	210
E. Armed struggle for national liberation	211
F. Lawful use of force	213
(a) Self-defence	213
(b) Authorization by the Security Council	217
(c) Humanitarian intervention	218
(d) Armed intervention by invitation	227
(e) NATO's new strategy	228
G. The consequences of a breach of the principle of non-use of force	229
(a) Nullity of treaties	229
(b) Annexation unlawful	230
2. Non-intervention	231
A. Legal basis	232
(a) Non-intervention as a bar to UN activities	232
(b) Non-intervention as a rule of inter-State law	233
(i) Coercion as key criterion	234
(ii) Exceptionally broader concept	236
(c) The impact of human rights	237
Chapter VII. Self-determination and international solidarity	239
1. Self-determination	239
A. The origins	239
B. Self-determination under the UN Charter	240
C. The scope ratione personae of self-determination	244
(a) General considerations	244
(b) Peoples	244
(i) Colonial peoples	245
(ii) Peoples under alien domination	247
(iii) Peoples of nation-States	247
(iv) One people in two States?	249

(c) Ethnic groups within existing States ?	250
(d) Indigenous peoples	251
(e) Minorities	253
(f) Groups suffering systematic discrimination	253
D. The scope ratione materiae of self-determination	255
(a) Independent statehood	255
(b) A "federal" right of self-determination ?	256
(c) Territorial consequences of self-determination	257
(d) Internal right of self-determination ?	258
2. International co-operation and solidarity	261
A. Legal basis	261
B. Co-operation — a living reality	262
C. Tension between sovereignty and duty of co-operation	263
D. Development as an expression of the duty to co-operate	265
3. Conclusion	266
Chapter VIII. International responsibility and liability	268
1. Responsibility for internationally wrongful acts	268
A. General observations	268
B. The current régime of State responsibility	270
(a) The basic concept of the ILC — primary and secondary rules	271
(b) Responsibility for State acts only	273
(c) Responsibility for all branches of government	277
(d) Breach of an international obligation	278
(e) The relevance of fault	281
(f) Damage as an element of internationally wrongful acts ?	284
(g) Injury caused to aliens	285
(h) Circumstances precluding wrongfulness	286
(i) Article 19 of the draft articles: international crimes	289
(j) Reparation	292
(k) Reparation in instances of human rights violations	295
(l) The different forms of reparation	297
(m) Damage to be repaired	298
2. Strict liability for acts not prohibited by international law	301
Part III. The main functions of governance	305
Chapter IX. The legislative function	305
1. General observations	305
2. The system of sources	307
A. Treaties	308
(a) Form	309
(b) Consent	309
(c) Binding character	311
(d) Fostering treaty adherence	312
(e) Rigidity and flexibility of treaties	313
(i) Denunciation clauses	314
(ii) Limitation in time	316
(iii) Review procedures	316
(iv) Rigid treaties	317
(v) Reservations	319
(f) Treaties as instruments of law-making	323

B. Custom	324
(a) No requirement of unanimity	325
(b) The former Soviet doctrine of custom	327
(c) Persistent objection	327
(d) General suitability of custom	330
(e) Different classes of custom	332
(f) Opinio juris gaining preponderance	333
C. General principles of law	335
D. Judicial decisions and teachings	341
E. Secondary law of international organizations	341
F. Unilateral acts	344
G. Equity	346
H. Treaty and custom — custom and treaty	347
I. Soft law	349
J. Core values of the international community as applicable law	355
Chapter X. The executive function	358
1. The traditional pattern	359
A. The expectation of autonomous compliance	359
B. The choices for the domestic implementation of treaties	360
C. Compliance with customary rules	366
D. Dédoublement fonctionnel	367
E. Enforcement: measures of retorsion and countermeasures	368
(a) Measures of retorsion	368
(b) Countermeasures	369
(i) General observations	369
(ii) The ILC draft articles on State responsibility	371
(iii) Countermeasures by “third” States	377
(iv) Limits of countermeasures	378
(c) Suspension or termination of treaties	379
2. Newly emerging patterns	379
A. Compliance control by individual States	380
(a) On-site inspections	380
(b) Commitment not to disturb verification	381
(c) Duty to provide information	382
B. Compliance control through centralized agencies	383
C. Enforcement through centralized agencies	387
(a) The UN Security Council	387
(b) The European Communities	388
3. Conclusion	389
Chapter XI. Settlement of disputes	390
1. General observations	390
A. The great variety of dispute settlement mechanisms	390
B. Basic rules	391
C. International and domestic disputes	393
2. The different methods of dispute settlement in inter-State relations	394
A. Negotiation	394
B. Enquiry	397
C. Good offices and mediation	398
D. Conciliation	399
E. Recourse to international organizations	400

TABLE OF CONTENTS

Introduction	23
Part I. Constitutive elements of the present-day international legal order	25
Chapter I. The existence and foundations of the international legal order	25
1. International law: a body of rules or a decision-making process?	25
2. The oneness of the international legal order	29
A. Jus publicum Europaeum	29
B. The socialist doctrine of international law	33
C. International law after decolonization	37
D. Globalization and its impact on the international legal order	40
3. Main characteristics of the international legal order	43
A. Lack of an international sovereign power	43
B. International law as a creation of its subjects	44
C. The binding force of international law	45
4. The all-embracing character of the international legal order	49
A. Compulsory membership — no outsiders	49
B. The challenge: big powers wishing to go it alone	51
C. Law and policy: again the New Haven school	53
D. Clash of civilizations?	55
Chapter II. The growing complexity of the international legal order	56
1. The origins — a law of coexistence	56
A. International law as law governing intercourse between States	56
B. Distinction ratione materiae between domestic and international law	57
2. The second stage — a law of co-operation	59
3. The third stage: international law as a comprehensive blueprint for social life	63
A. Human rights	63
B. Democracy	64
C. Good governance	68
D. Impact on State sovereignty and self-determination	70
4. Is there an international community?	72
A. Historical antecedents	73
B. Stock-taking	75
C. Legal analysis	77
(a) Institutionalization of the protection of community interests	78
(i) The United Nations	79
(ii) Other mechanisms	80
(b) Jus cogens, erga omnes obligations and international crimes	81
(i) Jus cogens	81
(ii) Erga omnes obligations	82
(iii) International crimes	84
(iv) An international public order	85
5. Conclusion	88