

MEDIATION QUARTERLY

VOLUME 18

NUMBER 1

FALL 2000

SPONSORED BY THE ACADEMY OF FAMILY MEDIATORS

Jossey-Bass

CONTENTS

EDITOR'S NOTES	1
ARTICLES
Genetic Technology and Family Conflict Deborah B. Gentry Technological and scientific advances have generated family conflicts regarding medical decisions. The author considers how mediators can participate in family decisions regarding genetic testing and diagnoses.	5
Mediation and Feminism: Common Values and Challenges Marsha Lichtenstein The author examines responses to feminist critiques of mediation and explores three elements that mediation and feminism share.	19
How Transformative Is Volunteer Mediation? A Qualitative Study of the Claims of Volunteer Mediators in a Community Justice Program Marc Martin This qualitative study of mediators in a community mediation setting looks at whether their mediation practices are consistent with their express adherence to the transformative approach.	33
Child-Inclusive Divorce Mediation: Report on a Qualitative Research Study Jennifer McIntosh This article addresses the question of whether and how to include children in divorce mediation and presents a model for a child-inclusive practice.	55

CORTE SUPREMA BIBLIOTECA
SIG. TOPOGRAFICA 2-20	INVENTARIO 154256

Emotion, Alienation, and Narratives: Resolving Intractable Conflict

71

Suzanne Retzinger, Thomas Scheff

Asserting that secret alienation and shame are the primary causes of intractable conflicts, the authors describe how the acknowledgment of emotion and alienation may assist clients in mediation in resolving such conflicts.

Symbol in Mediation

87

Jennifer Fisher

The author reflects on the potential use of symbols and rituals to enhance mediation practice.