

legalaffairs

January | February 2005

Cats With 10 Lives page 22

Man and the Machines page 36

1 Originalist Sin BY LINCOLN CAPLAN

3 Lex et Veritas BY HAROLD HONGJU KOH

SCENES

6 Identity Crisis To make its players safe, the NFL is tackling schemers and scammers. BY ANDY LATAK

8 Parliament of Dunces The Filipino constitution needs to change so that more competent legislators can be elected. BY JAMES B. GOODNO

10 The Fall of New Rome Ohio motorists mourn the town that tickets built. BY GEOFFREY GAGNON

11 The King of Plots Meet Michael Levin, the man who teaches lawyers how to write. BY AARON DALTON

NUMBERS

13 Disappearing Act Trials are vanishing from courtrooms as lawsuits increase.

THE PRUDENT JURIST

15 Should lawyers ever lie? BY WILLIAM H. SIMON

TERMS OF ART

16 The Goods, the Bads, and the Ugly The Fifth Amendment says that the government can take private property from its owners for public use. Just what that means is a question the Supreme Court is reconsidering. BY THOMAS W. MERRILL

ARGUMENTS

19 The Appearance of Propriety The judicial canons have got it wrong. The real ethical issues facing judges are hidden from view. BY ALEX KOZINSKI

22 Cats With 10 Lives Why we need to regulate the cloning of felines and other animals. BY JAY DIXIT

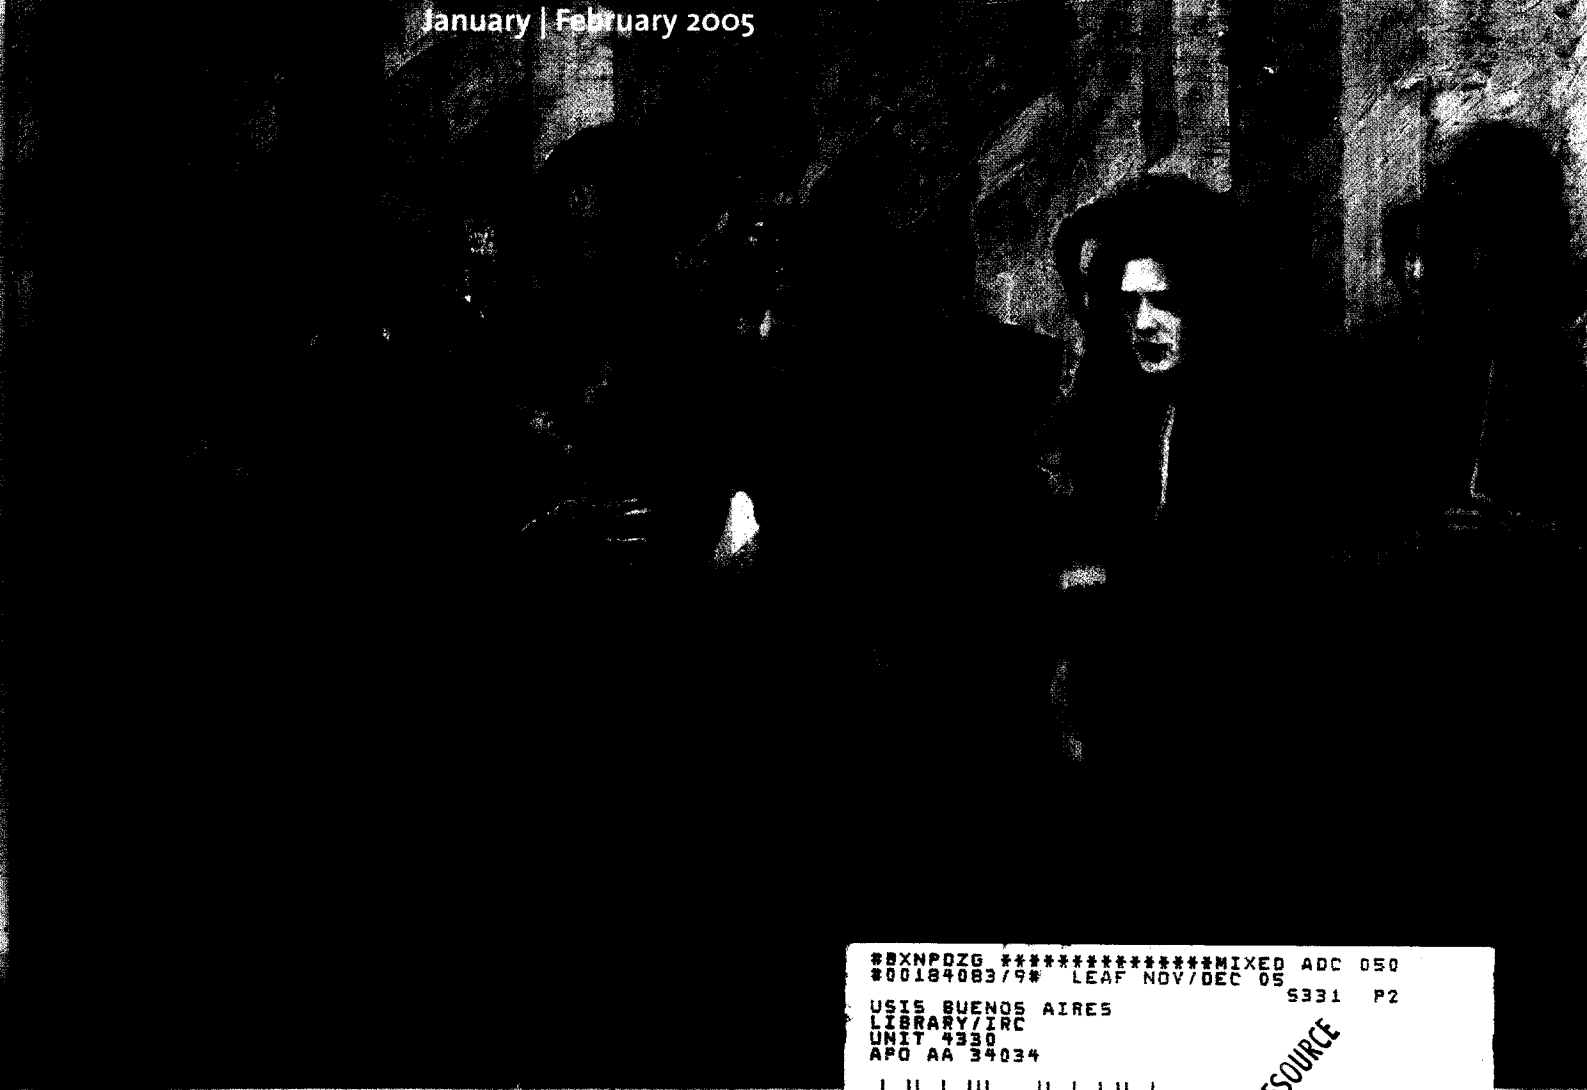

BILL MCKIBBEN
Taking Earth Day Global

ALEX KOZINSKI
Rearming the Ethical Canons

STEPHEN B. PRESSER
Touting Clarence Thomas

legalaffairs

January | February 2005

#BXNPDZG MIXED ADC 050
#00184083/9# LEAF NOV/DEC 05 S331 P2
USIS BUENOS AIRES
LIBRARY/IRC
UNIT 4330
APO AA 34034

INFORMATION RESOURCE CENTER

Forgive Me, Daughter

Impressed by their piety, courts have permitted the Amish to live outside the law. But in some places, the group's ethic of forgive and forget has produced a plague of incest—and let many perpetrators go unpunished.

By Nadya Labi

www.legalaffairs.org

28 THE GENTLE PEOPLE

Impressed by their piety, courts have permitted the Amish to live outside the law. But in some places, the group's ethic of forgive and forget has produced a plague of incest—and let many perpetrators go unpunished.

BY NADYA LABI

34 THE LAST LORD CHANCELLOR?

England is on the verge of stripping its most hallowed legal official of his power to sit as a judge, appoint judges, and be speaker of the House of Lords, but it may let him keep his title. BY WILLIAM GOODHART

36 MAN AND THE MACHINES

It's time to start thinking about how we might grant legal rights to computers. BY BENJAMIN SOSKIS

42 SUSPECT MEMORIES

Taking into account decades of scientific research, New Jersey is reforming its lineup procedures to reduce the number of false identifications. But it's never easy to pick a criminal out of a crowd. BY JASCHA HOFFMAN

46 COMMON DENOMINATOR

Using sophisticated mathematical models, a group of four economists has proven that a country's legal history greatly affects its economy. At least they think they've proven it. BY NICHOLAS THOMPSON

50 MONEY TALKS

In a race for the Ohio Supreme Court, one candidate spoke freely about his views and the other filled his war chest. Guess who won.

BY ANDREW GOLDSTEIN

REVIEWS

PRACTICE

53 Time Bomb at Mauna Loa

Environmental laws fought off hazards for a generation. But what about the challenges of the next?

BY BILL MCKIBBEN

ACADEMY

56 Pharma Furor

Why two high-profile attacks on big drug companies flunk the test of basic economics.

BY RICHARD A. EPSTEIN

ELSEWHERE

60 The First Amendment protects coarse college cheers—and other happenings in the nation's law reviews.

ACADEMY

62 Not So Free Speech

In perilous times we most need this basic liberty—and libertarians have had to struggle to protect it. BY ROD SMOLLA

PRACTICE

68 Touting Thomas

The truth about America's most maligned justice.

BY STEPHEN B. PRESSER

EXHIBIT

72 Body Art

