

TABLE OF CONTENTS

Presentation of the Course . . . . .	21
Introduction. Preliminary considerations . . . . .	31
Part I. Prolegomena . . . . .	37
Chapter I. The evolution towards a new jus gentium : the International Law for humankind. . . . .	37
I. The historical emergence of jus gentium . . . . .	37
II. The legacy of the evolving jus gentium : recta ratio and the pursuit of the common good . . . . .	40
III. The fragmentation of jus gentium into jus inter gentes . . . . .	43
IV. The fallacy of voluntarist positivism . . . . .	45
V. International law-making and the reconstruction of jus gentium . . . . .	50
VI. International Law, pluralism and universalism . . . . .	52
VII. The identification of the basic feature of the new jus gentium . . . . .	54
VIII. The universalist conception of International Law . . . . .	58
Chapter II. Time and law revisited: International Law and the temporal dimension . . . . .	61
I. Introduction . . . . .	61
II. Time and law: some precisions and lessons . . . . .	61
III. The incidence of the temporal dimension in International Law . . . . .	64
IV. Time and International Law in face of new needs of protection . . . . .	66
V. The presence of the preventive dimension in domains of protection . . . . .	70
VI. The expansion of provisional measures of protection . . . . .	72
VII. The myopia of political "realism". . . . .	79
VIII. Concluding observations . . . . .	83
Part II. Foundations of International Law . . . . .	85
Chapter III. Foundations of International Law: the role and importance of its basic principles . . . . .	85
I. Introduction . . . . .	85
II. The position and role of the general principles of law . . . . .	86
III. The fundamental principles as substratum of the legal order itself . . . . .	90
IV. The acknowledgment of general principles of law by the Statute of the Hague Court (PCIJ and ICJ) . . . . .	93
1. General principles of law and the quest for justice . . . . .	93
2. Principles of International Law as pillars of the international legal system . . . . .	95
V. The 1970 UN Declaration on Principles of International Law concerning Friendly Relations and Co-operation among States revisited . . . . .	97
1. General considerations in historical perspective . . . . .	97
2. The formulation of the principles of International Law . . . . .	100
3. The 1970 Declaration on Principles as a contribution to the identification of the opinio juris communis . . . . .	107

II. The omnipresence of basic considerations of humanity . . . . .	21
1. Illustrations of international case-law . . . . .	21
2. Illustrations of international legal doctrine . . . . .	24
III. Concluding observations . . . . .	26
Chapter XVII. Basic considerations of humanity in relation to disarmament . . . . .	28
I. Introduction . . . . .	28
II. The search for peace: the creation of zones of peace . . . . .	28
1. The attainment of peace and human security: a permanent goal	28
2. The initiative of zones of peace . . . . .	31
III. The establishment of nuclear-weapon-free zones . . . . .	33
IV. The endeavours towards general and complete disarmament . . . .	37
V. The illegality of nuclear weapons . . . . .	41
VI. Final observations . . . . .	52
Chapter XVIII. Basic considerations of humanity in relation to the law
of treaties . . . . .	59
I. Introduction . . . . .	59
II. Considerations on the interpretation of treaties . . . . .	59
1. General remarks . . . . .	59
2. Procedural issues . . . . .	64
3. Substantive law . . . . .	65
III. Considerations on the reservations to treaties . . . . .	66
IV. Considerations on the denunciation of treaties . . . . .	78
V. Considerations on the termination and suspension of the operation of treaties . . . . .	81
VI. Concluding observations . . . . .	83
Chapter XIX. Basic considerations of humanity in relation to State responsibility . . . . .	87
I. State responsibility and the general interests of the international community . . . . .	87
II. The birth of the international responsibility of States . . . . .	91
III. The implementation of the international responsibility of States .	98
IV. Serious breaches of obligations under peremptory norms of International Law . . . . .	100
V. Concluding observations . . . . .	103
Chapter XX. Basic considerations of humanity in relation to State succession . . . . .	105
I. Distinct moments and contexts of State succession . . . . .	105
II. State succession and the general interests of the international community . . . . .	107
III. State succession and continuity of conventional obligations concerning human rights . . . . .	108
IV. Concluding observations . . . . .	113
Chapter XXI. Basic considerations of humanity in relation to territory .	116
I. Prerequisites of statehood revisited . . . . .	116
II. Non-self-governing territories . . . . .	120
III. Non-militarization and peaceful uses of Antarctica . . . . .	122
IV. Territory and zonal initiatives for peace . . . . .	124

VII. Invocation and assertion of juridical conscience in international legal doctrine . . . . .	194
VIII. Final observations: the achievements of International Law and the universal juridical conscience . . . . .	197
Part IV. Subjects of International Law . . . . .	203
Chapter VII. States as subjects of International Law and the expansion of international legal personality . . . . .	203
I. Introduction: international legal personality expanded . . . . .	203
II. Statehood and recognition . . . . .	203
III. Rights and duties of States . . . . .	205
IV. States and the expansion of International Law . . . . .	208
V. The erosion of the domestic jurisdiction of States . . . . .	211
VI. Final observations: States and the new horizons of international legal personality . . . . .	217
Chapter VIII. International organizations as subjects of International Law . . . . .	220
I. Introduction: international organizations and the modification of the structure of the international legal order . . . . .	220
II. International organizations and the ideal of the realization of justice . . . . .	222
III. International organizations and the expansion of international legal personality and responsibility . . . . .	224
IV. The expansion of International Law itself by the law of international organizations . . . . .	229
1. International organizations and the ascertainment of opinio juris . . . . .	230
2. International organizations and treaty-making capacity . . . . .	232
3. Composition of international organizations: evolving issues . . . . .	234
4. The growth of multilateralism and international co-operation . . . . .	236
V. The projected reforms of the international organizations, particularly of the United Nations . . . . .	241
VI. Concluding observations: the contribution of international organizations to the progressive development of International Law . . . . .	245
1. International organizations: contents and legal effects of resolutions . . . . .	246
2. Responses to new needs and aspirations of the international community . . . . .	248
Chapter IX. The legal personality of the individual as subject of International Law . . . . .	252
I. Introduction . . . . .	252
II. The individual as subject of the emerging law of nations . . . . .	252
III. The attempted exclusion of the individual from the international legal order . . . . .	257
IV. The individual's presence and participation in the international legal order . . . . .	260
V. The rescue of the individual as subject of International Law . . . . .	265
VI. The legal personality of the individual as a response to a need of the international community . . . . .	273
VII. The attribution of duties to the individual directly by International Law . . . . .	276
VIII. Personality and capacity: the individual's access to justice at international level . . . . .	279
IX. Final observations: the historical significance of the international subjectivity of the individual . . . . .	282

Chapter XIII. Conceptual constructions: common heritage of mankind and common concern of mankind . . . . .	365
I. Introduction . . . . .	365
II. The content and significance of the concept of common heritage of mankind . . . . .	365
1. In the domain of the International Law of Outer Space . . . . .	367
2. In the domain of the Law of the Sea . . . . .	370
3. In the domain of the International Law of Bioethics . . . . .	376
4. In the domain of International Environmental Law . . . . .	379
III. The content and significance of the concept of common concern of mankind . . . . .	385
1. The emergence of the new concept . . . . .	385
2. The contribution of the new concept . . . . .	388
3. The co-existence between common heritage and common concern of mankind, and their legacy to International Law . . . . .	390
IV. Concluding observations . . . . .	393
Chapter XIV. Conceptual constructions: this right to peace and the right to development . . . . .	397
I. The formulation of the right to peace in International Law . . . . .	397
1. Elements of the right to peace in International Law . . . . .	397
2. Recent developments in the formulation of the right to peace . . . . .	399
II. The formulation of the right to development in International Law . . . . .	401
1. Elements of the right to development in International Law . . . . .	402
2. Crystallization of the right to development as a human right . . . . .	405
3. The conceptual construction of human development . . . . .	406
4. Lessons from the crystallization of the right to development . . . . .	409
Chapter XV. Conceptual constructions: responsibility for international crimes and universal jurisdiction . . . . .	412
I. Introduction . . . . .	412
II. The international responsibility of the State and of the individual: recent developments . . . . .	412
III. State responsibility, the criminalization of grave violations of human rights and the realization of justice . . . . .	415
IV. Complementarity between the international responsibility of States and the international criminal responsibility of individuals . . . . .	418
V. Some considerations on the crime of State revisited . . . . .	420
1. Configuration of the crime of State . . . . .	420
2. The crime of State in relation to the fundamental or superior interests of the international community . . . . .	424
VI. Juridical consequences of the crime of State . . . . .	427
VII. The principle of universal jurisdiction . . . . .	432
VIII. Concluding observations . . . . .	437

Volume 317 (2005)

Part VI. Humanization of International Law . . . . .	19
Chapter XVI. Basic considerations of humanity in the corpus juris of International Law . . . . .	19
I. Introduction: the relevance of basic considerations of humanity . . . . .	19

ACADÉMIE DE DROIT INTERNATIONAL
FONDÉE EN 1923 AVEC LE CONCOURS DE LA
DOTATION CARNEGIE POUR LA PAIX INTERNATIONALE

RECUEIL DES COURS

COLLECTED COURSES OF THE HAGUE
ACADEMY OF INTERNATIONAL LAW

2005

Tome 316 de la collection

2006

MARTINUS NIJHOFF PUBLISHERS
Leiden/Boston

2. International compulsory jurisdiction: reflections lex lata . . .	223
3. International compulsory jurisdiction: reflections de lege ferenda . . . . .	231
III. The recurring need and quest for compulsory jurisdiction . . . . .	235
IV. International rule of law: the growth of international jurisdiction . . . . .	239
Part VIII. Perspectives . . . . .	247
Chapter XXVI. The legacy of the recent cycle of World Conferences of the United Nations . . . . .	247
I. Preliminary observations: the international legal order in a world of profound contradictions . . . . .	247
1. A transformation of epoch . . . . .	249
2. The spirit of our epoch . . . . .	250
3. Universalism and cultural diversity . . . . .	251
II. The legacy of the cycle of UN World Conferences: conditions of life as a matter of international concern . . . . .	252
1. UN Conference on Environment and Development (Rio de Janeiro, 1992) . . . . .	254
2. II World Conference on Human Rights (Vienna, 1993) . . . . .	255
3. International Conference on Population and Development (Cairo, 1994) . . . . .	256
4. World Summit for Social Development (Copenhagen, 1995) . . . . .	257
5. IV World Conference on Women (Beijing, 1995) . . . . .	258
6. UN Conference on Human Settlements (Habitat-II, Istanbul, 1996) . . . . .	260
7. UN Conference on the Establishment of an International Criminal Court (Rome, 1998) . . . . .	262
8. World Conference against Racism, Racial Discrimination, Xenophobia and Related Intolerance (Dunbar, 2001) . . . . .	263
III. Concluding observations . . . . .	265
Chapter XXVII. Conclusions: International Law for humankind — towards a new jus gentium . . . . .	269
I. The process of gradual humanization of Public International Law . . . . .	269
II. The new jus gentium : International Law for Humankind . . . . .	271
1. Foundations . . . . .	272
2. Subjects . . . . .	274
3. Conceptual constructions . . . . .	276
4. Considerations of humanity . . . . .	278
5. International rule of law . . . . .	280
III. Epilogue: a message of confidence . . . . .	281
Select Bibliography . . . . .	283

V. Transitional administration of territory on behalf of the international community . . . . .	125
1. The case of Kosovo . . . . .	125
2. The case of East Timor . . . . .	126
3. The centrality of protection of the populations . . . . .	127
Chapter XXII. Basic considerations of humanity in relation to diplomatic and consular law . . . . .	130
I. Introduction: diplomatic and consular law beyond the inter-State outlook . . . . .	130
II. Diplomatic and consular law and universal International Law . . . . .	133
III. The right to information on consular assistance in the framework of the guarantees of the due process of law . . . . .	134
IV. The humanization of consular law in contemporary international practice . . . . .	140
V. Concluding observations . . . . .	147
Chapter XXIII. Basic considerations of humanity in relation to the convergences of regimes of protection of the human person . . . . .	150
I. The consolidated convergences between the regimes of protection of the human person . . . . .	150
II. The intensified convergences between the regimes of protection of the human person . . . . .	154
III. The contemporary phenomenon of uprootedness as a problem pertaining to the rights of the human person . . . . .	158
IV. The character of jus cogens of the principle of non-refoulement . . . . .	160
V. Concluding observations . . . . .	166
Part VII. Settlement of disputes . . . . .	173
Chapter XXIV. Peaceful settlement of international disputes: current state and perspectives . . . . .	173
I. Introduction: the basic problem of compulsory jurisdiction . . . . .	173
II. Interaction or complementarity of means of peaceful settlement . . . . .	175
III. Settlement of disputes in multilateral treaties . . . . .	184
IV. Current developments: fact-finding and the search for justice and the prevalence of the rule of law . . . . .	188
V. The search for ad hoc solutions . . . . .	193
1. The experience of Contadora . . . . .	194
2. The experience of guarantor States . . . . .	196
VI. Endeavours of systematization . . . . .	198
VII. Peaceful settlement and the renunciation of the use of force in international relations . . . . .	202
VIII. Peaceful settlement beyond State voluntarism: some new trends . . . . .	204
IX. Peaceful settlement and the general interests of the international community . . . . .	207
X. Concluding observations . . . . .	211
Chapter XXV. International rule of law: the need and quest for international compulsory jurisdiction . . . . .	217
I. International rule of law beyond peaceful settlement of disputes . . . . .	217
II. International rule of law: the saga of the optional clause of compulsory jurisdiction . . . . .	218
1. From the professed ideal to a distorted practice . . . . .	218

Chapter X. The legal capacity of the individual as subject of International Law . . . . .	285
I. Introduction . . . . .	285
II. The international legal capacity of the individual: legal foundations, nature and scope . . . . .	285
1. Legal foundations of the access of the human being to international tribunals . . . . .	285
2. Juridical nature and scope of the right of international individual petition . . . . .	289
III. The emancipation of the individual from his own State . . . . .	295
IV. The locus standi of individuals in the procedures before international human rights tribunals . . . . .	299
1. Developments in the European system of protection . . . . .	300
2. Developments in the Inter-American system of protection . . . . .	304
V. The individual right of direct access ( jus standi ) to international human rights tribunals . . . . .	308
1. Antecedents of domestic law: the subjective right, and the direct access ( jus standi ) to national tribunals . . . . .	308
2. Developments in International Law: the direct access ( jus standi ) to international human rights tribunals . . . . .	310
VI. The right of access lato sensu of individuals to international justice . . . . .	312
VII. Concluding observations . . . . .	314
Chapter XI. Humankind as a subject of International Law . . . . .	318
I. The perception and awareness of common and superior interests of humankind as such . . . . .	318
II. The fundamental principle of humanity . . . . .	320
III. Humankind and considerations of humanity: a conceptual precision . . . . .	324
IV. The emergence of humankind as a subject of International Law . . . . .	325
V. Legal consequences of the acknowledgment of humankind as subject of International Law . . . . .	330
1. The relevance of the human rights framework . . . . .	330
2. The question of the capacity to act and legal representation . . . . .	331
Part V. Construction of the International Law for humankind . . . . .	335
Chapter XII. Conceptual constructions: jus cogens and obligations erga omnes . . . . .	335
I. Introduction: fundamental values of the international community . . . . .	335
II. International jus cogens (peremptory norms of general International Law) . . . . .	336
1. Emergence and content of jus cogens . . . . .	336
2. Evolving scope of jus cogens . . . . .	339
3. Jus cogens as a pillar of the new jus gentium , the International Law for humankind . . . . .	345
III. Obligations erga omnes of protection . . . . .	347
1. Emergence and scope of the obligations . . . . .	347
2. Horizontal and vertical dimensions of the obligations . . . . .	353
IV. Obligations erga omnes and the emergence of actio popularis . . . . .	356
V. Concluding Observations . . . . .	359

VI. Concluding observations . . . . .	110
1. The sustained validity of the principles of International Law . . . . .	110
2. The projection in time of the evolving principle of self-determination of peoples . . . . .	114
3. Principles of International Law, the quest for justice and the universality of International Law . . . . .	119
Chapter IV. The primacy of International Law over force . . . . .	122
I. Introduction . . . . .	122
II. The crystallization and continuing validity of the principle of non-use of force . . . . .	122
III. The primacy of law over force as a cornerstone of contemporary International Law . . . . .	127
IV. The emerging right to humanitarian assistance . . . . .	132
V. The decivilizing effects of unwarranted use of force . . . . .	136
VI. Final observations: the primacy of law over force as an imperative of jus cogens . . . . .	141
Part III. Formation of International Law . . . . .	147
Chapter V. Contemporary International Law-making: a reassessment of the theory of formal "sources" of International Law . . . . .	147
I. Introduction . . . . .	147
II. General considerations on the formal "sources" of International Law . . . . .	148
III. The formal "sources" enumerated in Article 38 of the ICJ Statute . . . . .	150
1. International custom . . . . .	150
2. Treaties . . . . .	154
3. General principles of law . . . . .	157
4. Judicial and arbitral decisions . . . . .	158
5. Doctrine . . . . .	160
6. Equity . . . . .	163
IV. The formal "sources" not enumerated in Article 38 of the ICJ Statute . . . . .	164
1. Unilateral juridical acts of States . . . . .	164
2. Resolutions of international organizations . . . . .	166
V. The process of formation of contemporary International Law: from consent to consensus . . . . .	168
VI. Opinio juris beyond custom: its wide scope and role in the formation of contemporary International Law . . . . .	172
Chapter VI. The material source of International Law: manifestations of the universal juridical conscience . . . . .	177
I. Introduction: insufficiencies of the formal "sources" and the relevance of the material "source" of International Law . . . . .	177
II. Human conscience, recta ratio and the universality of International Law . . . . .	179
III. The material source of International Law beyond State legal positivism . . . . .	184
IV. Invocation and assertion of juridical conscience in international treaties . . . . .	186
V. Universal juridical conscience: the historical significance of the Martens Clause . . . . .	190
VI. Invocation of juridical conscience in judicial proceedings and international case-law . . . . .	192