

September–December 2011

International Social Science Journal

WILEY Blackwell & UNESCO

Political Ecology: Religion, Myth, Belief/ Biopolitical Control, Bodily Resistance

Abstracts 251

1st dossier: Political Ecology: Religion, Myth, Belief

John Grim	The roles of religions in activating an ecological consciousness	255
Celeste Ray	The sacred and the body politic at Ireland's holy wells	271
Thomas H. Ford	Ruskin's Storm-cloud : heavenly messages and pathetic fallacies in a denatured world	287

Stephen R. L. Clark	Imaginary futures and moral possibilities: blossoming in the morn of days	301
---------------------	---	-----

Lionel Obadia	Political ecology and Buddhism: an ambivalent relationship	313
---------------	--	-----

Stefan Skrimshire	The end of the future: Hegel and the political ecology of deep time	325
-------------------	---	-----

2nd dossier: Biopolitical Control, Bodily Resistance

Maria Ferreira	Bodies do matter! The rule of precariousness in Haiti	339
----------------	---	-----

Ken Cliff and Zsuzsa Millei	Biopower and the "civilisation" of children's bodies in a preschool bathroom: An Australian case study	351
-----------------------------	--	-----

Gonzalo Velasco Arias	The normalisation of exception in the biopolitical security dispositif	363
-----------------------	--	-----

Hernán Cuevas Valenzuela and Isabel Pérez Zamora	The governance of AIDS in Chile: power/knowledge, patient-user organisation, and the formation of the biological citizen	377
--	--	-----

Emiliano Sacchi	The biopolitical paradox: population and security mechanisms	391
-----------------	--	-----

	Past issues	403
--	-------------	-----