

RECUEIL DES COURS

378 (2015)

L'Académie de droit international de La Haye

honorée du prix Wateler de la Paix (1936, 1950), du prix Félix Houphouët-Boigny pour la recherche de la paix (1992), de l'ordre du Rio Branco, Brésil (1999), et de la médaille de l'Institut royal d'études européennes, Espagne (2000)

The Hague Academy of International Law

awarded the Wateler Peace Prize (1936, 1950), the Félix Houphouët-Boigny Peace Prize (1992), the Order of Rio Branco, Brazil (1999), and the Medal of the Royal Institute of European Studies, Spain (2000)

TABLE OF CONTENTS

Preface	19
Chapter I. Introduction	21
A. The setting	21
B. Incorporation of international law	23
C. Different sources of the concept of direct applicability.	28
Chapter II. Concept of direct applicability: the international approach	32
A. Advisory Opinion of the Permanent Court of International Justice in Jurisdiction of the Courts of Danzig	32
B. Direct applicability and the intention of the parties to treaties.	36
1. The International Covenant on Civil and Political Rights.	36
2. The International Covenant on Economic, Social and Cultural Rights	41
C. Features of the international approach.	47
Chapter III. The doctrine of self-executing treaties in the United States	54
A. Concept	54
1. No need of legislation and directly applicable.	54
2. Direct applicability and domestic legal force of international law	57
(a) Distinguishing direct applicability and domestic legal force.	57
(b) Relationship between direct applicability and domestic legal force.	58
3. Creation of individual rights and obligations	59
B. Question of domestic law	63
C. Criteria	65
1. Subjective criteria.	65
(a) Intent of the parties.	65
(1) Positive intent of the parties.	65
(2) Presumption	67
(3) Negative intent of the parties	68
(4) Provisions calling for domestic implementation	69
(5) Provisions calling for international implementation	70
(6) Intent of the United States.	71
(7) Travaux préparatoires	72
(8) Practice of other States	73
(b) Executive intent.	73
(c) Legislative intent	74
(d) Declarations.	76
2. Objective criteria	78
(a) Precision	78
(b) Subject matter	80
(c) Legal obligations	82
(d) Political treaties.	82
(e) International procedures for enforcement	84
(f) States as the grammatical subject	85
(g) Language of contract.	85
D. Relative approach	86

Chapter IV. Direct effect of European Union law	91
A. Concept	91
1. Origin of the concept	91
2. Direct effect and direct applicability	94
3. Creation of individual rights and obligations	96
B. Question of EU law	98
C. Criteria	99
1. Spirit, general scheme, wording	99
2. Precision	101
3. No discretion	103
4. Unconditionality	105
5. Other criteria	106
(a) Provisions calling for implementation	106
(b) Formal addressee	107
(c) International procedures for enforcement	107
(d) Legal obligations	108
D. Regulations, decisions, directives, and international agreements	109
1. Regulations, decisions, directives	109
2. International agreements	111
E. Relative approach	118
1. Contextual determination of direct applicability	118
2. Other effects	125
F. Direct applicability in EU law and international law	129
Chapter V. Domestic application of international law: a framework of analysis	134
A. Concept of direct applicability of international law	134
1. Confusion of concept	134
2. Direct applicability and domestic legal force of international law	139
(a) Distinguishing direct applicability and domestic legal force	139
(b) Relationship between direct applicability and domestic legal force	141
3. Creation of individual rights and obligations	144
4. Distinguishing directly applicable international law from law-making treaties	149
B. Question of domestic law	150
C. Criteria of direct applicability of international law	157
1. Subjective criteria	158
(a) Intent of the parties	158
(1) Positive intent of the parties	158
(2) Presumption	160
(3) Negative intent of the parties	161
(4) Provisions calling for domestic implementation	163
(5) Provisions calling for international implementation	166
(6) Intent of one's own State	167
(7) Travaux préparatoires	168
(8) Practice of other States	168
(b) Intent of the executive and the legislature	168
(1) The executive intent	169
(2) The legislative intent	169
(3) Declarations	171

2. Objective criteria	172
(a) Precision	172
(b) Subject matter	177
(c) Legal obligations	178
(d) Political treaties	178
(e) International procedures for enforcement	179
(f) Reciprocity	182
(g) States as the grammatical subject	184
D. Relative approach	185
1. Contextual determination of direct applicability	185
2. Other effects	190
3. Benefits of the relative approach	198
Chapter VI. Customary international law, acts of international organiza- tions, and judgments of international courts	200
A. Direct applicability of customary international law	200
B. Direct applicability of acts of international organizations	204
1. Domestic legal force	205
2. Direct applicability	210
3. Other effects	212
C. Direct enforceability of judgments of international courts	213
1. Domestic enforcement of international decisions	213
(a) International arbitral awards	214
(b) European Court of Justice	214
(c) European Court of Human Rights	215
(d) International Court of Justice	217
(e) World Trade Organization	226
2. Direct enforceability	230
3. Acts of international supervisory bodies	232
(a) International Labour Organization	232
(b) United Nations human rights treaty bodies	232
4. Other effects	236
Conclusion	243
Bibliography	248